Biographical / Historical

Gerald Marks of the South Windsor Music Department organized the South Windsor Cultural Arts Commission in 1971. The Commission is a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting the fine, applied, and performing arts, and bringing "education, enrichment, and entertainment through the arts to the people of South Windsor." The Commission initially focused on bringing music and music education to the South Windsor public schools. Its focus later broadened to include promoting the arts in the general community through programs including concerts and art exhibits. One of its principal programs is the Sunday Concert Series, an annual series of free solo and ensemble concerts.
